

Promoting Hong Kong's 'Belt and Road' role in the UK and Lithuania

Gregory So, Secretary for Commerce and Economic Development, visited the United Kingdom and Lithuania in May to promote business opportunities in Hong Kong.

Mr So encouraged businesses in both countries to take advantage of opportunities under the Belt and Road Initiative, which promotes economic and cultural connections across more than 60 economies in Asia, Africa and Europe (see page 4).

Speaking at a breakfast roundtable hosted by Chatham House in London, Mr So said he expected to see soaring investments in infrastructural facilities, deepening financial integration and growth in trade as a result of the Belt and Road Initiative. "It's your ticket to the massive Chinese consumer market and its fast-rising middle class," he told the audience.

Right: Mr So (left) with Algirdas Butkevicius, Prime Minister of Lithuania. Photo: J.V.Turas.

Left: Mr So speaks at a business seminar on creative industries in London.

Left: Anaïs Aguerre (right), Head of International Initiatives at the Victoria and Albert Museum, London, shows Mr So around an outdoor installation.

Later, he attended a luncheon hosted by the Hong Kong Association and updated UK business leaders on the opportunities under the Belt and Road Initiative, the business outlook of Hong Kong and latest developments in the trading, logistics and tourism sectors.

Above: Mr So (front row, seventh left), pictured in London with members of the Hong Kong Association Committee.

Left: Sajid Javid, then Secretary of State for Business, Innovation and Skills, (left) pictured with Mr So during their meeting in London.

Continued on p3

Legislative Council elections

The election of Hong Kong's Legislative Council (LegCo) took place on 4 September.

A record 2.2 million people cast their votes in the geographical constituencies, a turnout rate of 58%, compared to 53.05% in the 2012 election. A further 1.98 million District Council (second) functional constituency votes were cast, representing 57% of total electors, compared to 51.95% in the previous election. About 170,000 people voted in other functional constituencies, representing a turnout rate of 74%.

Congratulating all elected members, C Y Leung, Chief Executive said he and the Government "look forward to closer collaboration with all LegCo members in the future". He also expressed his gratitude to the outgoing members.

ALSO IN THIS ISSUE...

Work begins on third runway
– Page 2

Inaugural Belt and Road Summit
– Page 4

Food trucks arrive on Hong Kong streets
– Page 6

●●● China-Hong Kong

Chairman of the Standing Committee of the National People's Congress visits Hong Kong

Zhang Dejiang, Chairman of the Standing Committee of the National People's Congress, visited Hong Kong in May.

During his three day visit, Mr Zhang was briefed on the work of the Hong Kong Government in various areas. The highlight of his visit was to address the participants of the inaugural Belt & Road Summit (see page 4).

During a visit to the Hong Kong Science Park, Mr Zhang met entrepreneurs from five local start-ups working in areas such as wildfire detection robots and bio-artificial hearts, and discussed with entrepreneurs the development of innovation and technology industries in Hong Kong.

Mr Zhang also met CY Leung, Chief Executive, Carrie Lam, Chief Secretary for Administration, John C Tsang, Financial Secretary, and Rimsky Yuen, Secretary for Justice, and was the guest of honour at a welcome banquet at the Hong Kong Convention and Exhibition Centre, attended by 400 guests.

Right: A young entrepreneur briefs Mr Zhang (far left) during his visit to the Hong Kong Science Park.

Left: Mr Zhang (third right) visits the rehabilitation room at the Sheng Kung Hui Tseung Kwan O Aged Care Complex.

While in Hong Kong, Mr Zhang also visited the Sheng Kung Hui Tseung Kwan O Aged Care Complex to meet senior citizens and to learn more about the elderly care strategy adopted by the Government to meet the challenges of an ageing society.

Above: Mr Leung (front row, seventh left) and Mr Zhang (front row, centre), pictured with other representatives of the Hong Kong Government.

Above: Mr Zhang (front row, third right) views a model of the Lantau development during his visit to the Development Bureau.

●●● Trade

Russia and Hong Kong have "vast development opportunities"

Yury Trutnev, Deputy Prime Minister of Russia, visited Hong Kong in May.

During his visit, he met Chief Executive C Y Leung to discuss closer economic and trade links between the two places.

Noting that Russia is one of the countries along the Belt and Road (see page 4), Mr Leung said Hong Kong could play a key role in helping Russian enterprises open up more business opportunities in Mainland China.

The two places could enhance co-operation in areas such as culture, tourism, innovation and technology to tap the vast development opportunities brought about by the initiative, Mr Leung said.

Right: Mr Leung (right) pictured with Mr Trutnev, during his visit to Hong Kong.

●●● Trade

UK Chancellor and trade minister visit Hong Kong

Philip Hammond, UK Chancellor of the Exchequer, and Lord Price, UK Minister of State for Trade and Investment (now Minister of State for Trade Policy), visited Hong Kong in July to strengthen economic relations between the two places.

Philip Hammond visited Hong Kong, where he hosted a reception to promote business cooperation opportunities, after attending the G20 Finance Ministers meeting in Chengdu in July.

During Lord Price's visit to Hong Kong, he met John C Tsang, Financial Secretary, and other government and business representatives and spoke at an event organised by the British Chamber of Commerce in Hong Kong.

Noting that 630 British companies operate in Hong Kong, and that Hong Kong is the UK's second largest Asia Pacific export market for goods, he said the British Government would work to "grasp future opportunities both here and in the UK".

●●● Environment

Waste into energy

Sludge produced in sewage treatment works is being turned into energy at the new state-of-the-art T.PARK facility in Tuen Mun, Hong Kong.

The new plant, which was officially opened in May, is the largest of its kind in the world, capable of treating up to 2,000 tonnes of sludge a day and generating enough electricity to power up to 4,000 homes.

T.PARK (the 'T' stands for 'transformation') will also desalinate seawater and treat waste water and includes a nature reserve and a 9,800 square metre garden. More information about T.PARK is available at www.tpark.hk.

T.PARK is the world's largest sludge incinerator.

●●● Transport

Work begins on third runway

Construction has started on a third runway at Hong Kong International Airport.

The project, which is similar in scale to the construction of a new airport, will see around 650 hectares of land reclaimed from the sea to make room for the new runway, terminal building and expanded road and transport network.

The runway is designed to support the long-term development of Hong Kong and is expected to be operational in 2022. Terminal two will also be expanded as part of the development.

Above: Hong Kong International Airport's new runway is expected to open in 2022.

Continued from p1

"Brewing creative ideas"

During a speech at a business seminar in London, Mr So highlighted Hong Kong's growing creative and cultural industries. Hong Kong "has developed itself as a place for brewing creative ideas and turning them into businesses", and is now "one of the most important business platforms in the world for creative industries", he said.

Mr So noted that fashion will be one of the new engines for propelling the growth of Hong Kong's creative industries in the future, and said that it is important to support young designers to capitalise on the opportunities and develop their brands. Mr So visited Central Saint Martins College of Arts and Design, University of the Arts London and met with some Hong Kong fashion, arts and design students, and he also visited Campus London, a start-up facility in East London's Tech City.

Food trucks

While in London, Mr So learned more about how food trucks operate in the capital. Popular in many parts of the world, these vehicles are being introduced in Hong Kong as part of a Government pilot scheme (see page 6).

Above: Mr So (left) meets Mr Neverauskas, Lithuania's Vice-Minister of Culture. Photo: J.V.Turas.

Mr So also officiated at the opening ceremony of the new office of the Hong Kong Economic and Trade Office (HKETO), London, and visited Britain's largest manufacturer of bicycles, the Brompton Bicycle Company, as well as the Warner Bros Studio.

During his visit Mr So had meetings with John Whittingdale, then UK

Above: Mr So (right), officiates at the opening ceremony of the new office of the HKETO.

Above: Mr Gustas, Minister of Economy (right), pictured with Mr So. Photo: J.V.Turas.

Secretary of State for Culture, Media and Sport, and Sajid Javid, then Secretary of State for Business, Innovation and Skills, as well as the UK Parliament's All Party Parliamentary China Group. He also visited the Victoria and Albert Museum, and watched a training session for the 2016 London Hong Kong Dragon Boat Festival (see page 8).

'Super-connector'

In Vilnius, Mr So addressed a business seminar co-organised by HKETO, Invest Hong Kong and the Hong Kong Trade Development Council. Mr So told the audience that 'one country, two systems' has made Hong Kong "the 'super-connector' that facilitates connections under the Belt and Road Initiative."

Mr So also had talks with key government figures including Algirdas Butkevicius, Prime Minister, Evaldas Gustas, Minister of Economy, Raimundas Karoblis, Vice-Minister of Foreign Affairs, and Arnas Neverauskas, Vice-Minister of Culture. He also visited the Vilnius University Joint Life Sciences Centre, the Visoraii Information Technology Park and a start-up accelerator.

●●● Economy

Belt and Road is “driving force of world economy”

The Belt and Road Initiative will be a “driving force of the world economy in the 21st century”, said C Y Leung, Chief Executive, at the first Belt and Road summit, which took place in the Hong Kong Convention and Exhibition Centre in May.

The inaugural Belt and Road Summit brought together more than 2,000 political leaders, policy makers, representatives of international organisations and top business executives from around the world to identify the new business opportunities arising from the Initiative in various areas, as well as highlighting the unique role that Hong Kong could play.

‘Super-connector’

“The Belt and Road Initiative is a vast project – in scope, scale and diversity,” said Mr Leung, adding that Hong Kong was ideally placed to contribute to co-operation among Belt and Road economies because of its expertise in areas such as finance, investment, professional services, trade, logistics, innovation

What is Belt and Road?

The Belt and Road Initiative refers to the Silk Road Economic Belt and 21st Century Maritime Silk Road, a significant development strategy launched by President Xi Jinping of China in 2013. Commonly called the Belt and Road Initiative, its aim is to promote economic, political and cultural co-operation in over 60 economies of the proposed Belt and Road network, which stretches across Asia, Africa and Europe, and together encompass around 65 per cent of the world’s population.

Historically, the Silk Road was an ancient network of trade routes from China to the Mediterranean and Northern Europe, dating back well over a thousand years, which were vital for trade and cultural interaction.

Above: Zhang Dejiang (seventh left), Chairman of the Standing Committee of the National People’s Congress, officiates at the inaugural Belt and Road Summit.

and technology. “Hong Kong can serve as a ‘super-connector’ between Mainland China and the rest of the world,” he continued.

“Unparalleled connectivity”

Delivering the keynote speech at the summit, Zhang Dejiang, Chairman of the Standing Committee of the National People’s Congress, said Hong Kong was “a key link for the Belt and Road” and “an important gateway in the landscape of China’s opening up”. Mr Zhang identified four key advantages for Hong Kong: its location on the busiest international sea route; its character as a ‘first mover’, a free economy and free port; its diverse and advanced professional services sector; and its long-standing history of cultural and people-to-people interactions between the East and the West.

The summit was organised by the Hong Kong Government in association with the Hong Kong Trade Development Council, and with the support of the Central Government.

●●● Finance

Infrastructure financing boost

Hong Kong’s role in financing major infrastructure projects in Asia will be boosted by the launch of the Government’s new Infrastructure Financing Facilitation Office (IFFO).

The IFFO, which is part of the Hong Kong Monetary Authority, will facilitate investment in infrastructure projects and their financing.

Above: John C Tsang, Financial Secretary (third right), and Norman Chan, Chief Executive of the Hong Kong Monetary Authority, (third left), cut the ribbon with other guests at the launch of the Infrastructure Financing Facilitation Office.

“Hong Kong is well-placed to serve as the centre for fundraising, project financing and asset-management for infrastructure projects in the region,” said John C Tsang, Financial Secretary, speaking at the launch of the IFFO in July.

●●● Trade

Tariff reductions for transshipment cargo

Shipping consignments bound for Mainland China which pass through Hong Kong will now enjoy tariff reductions following the signing of a Co-operation Arrangement on Origin of Transshipment Cargo.

The arrangement covers shipments between the Mainland and its trading partners including the ten member states of the Association of Southeast Asian Nations (Brunei, Cambodia, Indonesia, Laos, Malaysia, Myanmar, the Philippines, Singapore, Thailand and Vietnam) as well as Australia, Bangladesh, Chile, Costa Rica, Iceland, India, Korea, New Zealand, Pakistan, Peru, Sri Lanka, Switzerland and Taiwan.

The move will strengthen Hong Kong’s role as an international trade and logistics hub as well as encouraging companies to choose Hong Kong as a transshipment location.

●●● Technology

Hong Kong is technology 'super connector' for Asia

Hong Kong is the ideal place for research and technology entrepreneurs who want to develop their ideas and tap into the Mainland China market, said Priscilla To, Director-General of the Hong Kong Economic and Trade Office, London, speaking at a London Technology Week seminar in June.

Entrepreneurs and research institutes should choose Hong Kong as a regional base for developing their ideas because they can "make use of facilities just across the border to develop prototypes over a few days," she said, and also take advantage of Hong Kong's "connectivity and network to tap into the Mainland and Asia markets".

Hong Kong has what it takes to "play a key role in Asia for innovation and technology", she said.

The seminar, which was part of London Technology Week supported by Tech London Advocates, was organised by Invest Hong Kong and the Institute of Directors, City of London branch.

●●● Finance

Hong Kong hosts Asia finance conference

Asia will continue to be the main engine of growth for the world economy in the 21st century, said John C Tsang, Financial Secretary, at the Financial Cooperation Conference in July.

The conference, organised by the Boao Forum for Asia (BFA) and the Hong Kong Monetary Authority, attracted around 250 participants from financial institutions, multinational corporations and international organisations. The focus of the event was on how finance could stimulate economic growth. Topics included monetary policy and economic growth, cross-border capital flows, financing infrastructure, and financial co-operation across Asia.

Addressing the conference, Zhou Wenzhong, Secretary General of the BFA said the event aimed to "bring forth innovative solutions through brainstorming among regulators, finance community and real economy actors".

Above: Mr Tsang addresses a luncheon at the Financial Cooperation Conference.

●●● Business

British companies launch in Hong Kong

British e-commerce consultancy Practicology has opened a regional office in Hong Kong to help it access markets in Mainland China and the Asia-Pacific region.

Practicology, which also has offices in London, Sydney and Melbourne, now has more than 50 consultants around the world helping clients face e-commerce challenges.

Above: Joakim Cimmerbeck, managing director of eicó.

eicó, a British company that makes environmentally-friendly paints, has also opened an Asia-Pacific regional headquarters in Hong Kong to take advantage of the growing demand for green and sustainable paints in Hong Kong as well as the Asia-Pacific region.

"Hong Kong is the ideal place to raise the awareness of sustainability and green living in Asia," said Joakim Cimmerbeck, managing director of eicó.

●●● Economy

World's most competitive economy

Hong Kong is the world's most competitive economy, according to the International Institute for Management Development (IMD) in its World Competitiveness Yearbook 2016.

Hong Kong was ranked top among the 61 economies assessed, moving up from second place in 2015. The report analysed each economy's performance as well as government efficiency, business efficiency and infrastructure. The IMD also recognised Hong Kong's commitment to providing a favourable business environment, its low and simple taxation, free flow of capital, and its role as a gateway between the Mainland China and the global capital markets.

●●● Investment

Second for global foreign investment

Hong Kong continues to rank second in global foreign direct investment (FDI) inflows, as measured by the United Nations.

The UN World Investment Report 2016 said Hong Kong registered FDI inflows of US$175 billion in 2015, a 53.5% increase on 2014. This places Hong Kong second behind only the US (US$380 billion).

● ● ● Culture

Lei Yue Mun Barrack blocks declared monuments

Three historic buildings, namely Blocks 7, 10 and 25 at the old Lei Yue Mun Barracks, have been declared monuments.

Situated at the northeast corner of Hong Kong Island overlooking Victoria Harbour, the barracks are one of the earliest and most important British Army fortifications in Hong Kong.

Constructed between 1890 and 1939, the barracks fell to the hands of the Japanese during the Second World War, after which they were used by the British Army as a training ground, before being returned to the Hong Kong Government for civil use in 1987. The central area and the western ridge have been the Lei Yue Mun Park and Holiday Village since 1988. The military installations at the headland now form the Museum of Coastal Defence, which was opened in 2000.

Information on the three declared monuments is available at the heritage conservation website of the Development Bureau (www.heritage.gov.hk).

Right: Block 10 at the old Lei Yue Mun Barracks is now a declared monument.

● ● ● Gastronomy

Food trucks arrive on Hong Kong streets

Sixteen food trucks will appear near Hong Kong tourist attractions in the coming months, adding fun and vibrancy to the already flourishing culinary scene.

Chefs from the various shortlisted companies were invited to prepare their signature dishes at a special 'cook-off' in July to select the 16 winners.

Food trucks, which are already a feature of many cities, will be introduced to Hong Kong under the Government's food truck pilot scheme, which aims to create diverse, creative and high quality food options for tourists and locals alike.

Of the 192 applicants to join the scheme, 51 were shortlisted to take part in the cook-off. As well as fantastic culinary flair, would-be food truck operators had to show they had robust business and environmental plans. Eight of the winning signature dishes were Chinese, four Western and four international. Seven of the successful food truck businesses will be run by start-ups or micro-enterprises.

Above: Food lovers enjoy tasty delights at the first Hong Kong Food Truck Festival, which was held at PMQ in May. Four trucks, run by Hong Kong celebrities and their cooking teams, offered an array of scrumptious food.

● ● ● Culture

Cultural heritage centre opens

The Hong Kong Intangible Cultural Heritage Centre was officially opened in June.

The centre has the mission of enhancing the public's understanding and awareness of Hong Kong's intangible cultural heritage, such as oral traditions, performing arts, social practices, rituals, festive events and traditional crafts.

The first exhibition at the centre, "Oral Legacies – Intangible Cultural Heritage of Hong Kong", looks at the different ways local communities pass on their customs and traditions.

● ● ● Finance

Shenzhen-Hong Kong Stock Connect

The Chinese Government has approved the implementation plan for Shenzhen-Hong Kong Stock Connect, a move which will allow investors in Hong Kong and Shenzhen to invest directly in eligible shares listed on each others' stock markets via the exchange and clearing house in their home market.

"The establishment of Shenzhen-Hong Kong Stock Connect is beneficial for both sides. This will facilitate the further opening-up of the capital markets of the Mainland in a risk controlled manner and promote the internationalisation of Renminbi," said John C Tsang, Financial Secretary. "I am pleased that Hong Kong continues to play a significant role in the two-way opening-up of the Mainland's capital markets to the rest of the world."

●●● Education

UK students win places at university summer schools in Hong Kong

Five sixth-form students from the United Kingdom won the chance to take part in summer courses at Hong Kong universities to experience a taste of the city's cosmopolitan lifestyle and unique culture.

They were the winners of the "Hong Kong: A Smart City in the World!" competition, organised by the Hong Kong Economic and Trade Office, London (HKETO).

The students were asked to propose ways that technology could be used to improve people's quality of life in Hong Kong. The winning entries were in various formats including websites, Instagram pages, blogs and YouTube videos.

Priscilla To, Director-General of the HKETO, said at the prize presentation ceremony at the House of Lords in June, "This competition was designed to further deepen our relationship with the UK in education, youth and cultural exchange."

One of the judges, Lord Wei of Shoreditch, chair of the Hong Kong sub-committee of the All Party Parliamentary China Group, said, "Hong Kong, like London, is one of the world's centres for commerce, trade and culture, and this initiative allows for our youth to exchange ideas and learn from one another."

The five winners were:

Alexander White, Highlands School, Enfield – studied at the Chinese University of Hong Kong this summer.

Aliya Beck, Chelsea Academy, London – studied at the University of Hong Kong.

Andrew Pilkington, Wirral Grammar School for Boys, Birkenhead – studied at the University of Hong Kong.

Lakshmi Amulya Sannapureddy, Kendrick School, Reading – studied at the Chinese University of Hong Kong.

Nizam Miah, Bow School, London – studied at the Hong Kong University of Science and Technology.

Above: The winning students pictured with competition judges and sponsors (from left) Cherie Yeung, Deputy Director-General, HKETO; Gordon Slaven, Director of International Higher Education at the British Council; Neil Glenn, General Manager, Europe of Cathay Pacific; Ms To; Karen Luard, Chairperson of the Hong Kong Society; and Lord Wei.

●●● Culture

First permanent venue for WKCD

The M+ Pavilion has been completed and becomes the first permanent venue in the new West Kowloon Cultural District (WKCD), one of the largest cultural projects in the world.

M+ Pavilion is part Hong Kong's museum for visual culture, M+, which encompasses twentieth and twenty-first century art, design, architecture and moving image, and is due to open in 2019. In the run-up to the opening, the M+ Pavilion will host a series of exhibitions displaying selections from the M+ collection.

The completion of the M+ Pavilion marks "a significant milestone in the development of this major cultural undertaking in Hong Kong", said Carrie Lam, Chief Secretary for Administration who is also the Chairman of the WKCD Board.

The main roof has also been raised on the Xiqu Cantonese Opera Centre, which will include a 1,100 seat main theatre, a tea house theatre, rehearsal facilities and a spacious plaza, and is due to open in 2018. The new Lyric Theatre Complex is expected to open in 2021.

"We will continue to develop the WKCD into a world-class art and cultural hub where everyone may relax, be inspired and enjoy an extraordinary cultural experience," said Mrs Lam.

Above: Mrs Lam (right) visits M+ Pavilion with Duncan Pescod, Chief Executive Officer of the West Kowloon Cultural District Authority.

Right: Mrs Lam speaking at a celebration to mark the roof-raising of the Xiqu Centre.

●●● Culture

Brand Hong Kong

Whether you want to do business, study or travel in Hong Kong, you'll find a wealth of videos, pictures, publications and stories about life in Asia's world city at the new Brand Hong Kong website (brandhk.gov.hk). You can also find them on Facebook (facebook.com/brandhk.isd), Instagram (instagram.com/brandhongkong) or YouTube (youtube.com/c/brandhongkong).

● ● ● Culture

London Hong Kong Dragon Boat Festival 2016

Thousands of people flocked to London Docklands in June for the 2016 London Hong Kong Dragon Boat Festival.

Dragon boat racing, which dates back more than two thousand years, has become an integral part of Hong Kong's lifestyle. More than 40 dragon boat teams from the local community, businesses, public organisations and charities took part in the London event.

"Hong Kong held the first international dragon boat festival three decades ago, and since then it has developed into a truly global event. Here in London this festival has become a key event in the city's cultural calendar," said Priscilla To, Director-General of the Hong Kong Economic and Trade Office, London (HKETO), which sponsored the event.

The festival also featured lion dancing, live music, martial arts demonstrations and stalls selling traditional food from Asia and across the world. The event was organised by London Chinatown Lions Club, London Chinatown Chinese Association, London Chinese Community Centre and the Hong Kong Executives Club.

Above: Ms To enjoys some of the many Hong Kong-themed games at the HKETO marquee.

Above: Thousands flocked to London Docklands in June for the annual Hong Kong Dragon Boat Festival.

Battling it out at the 2016 Hong Kong Dragon Boat Festival.

● ● ● Culture

Around the world in song

Choral works from 13 countries were showcased at a special concert at St John's Smith Square in London by The Learners Chorus on 24 July.

Led by music director Apollo Wong, the choral group performed a wide variety of repertoire from sacred Baroque music to Canto-pop, including: Leonardo Dreams of His Flying Machine; Lo, the Full,

Above: The Learners Chorus perform at St John's Smith Square in July.

Final Sacrifice; So You Want to Write a Fugue; Rejoice, O Virgin and Gloria.

The choir also made use of their visit to London to perform at two Chinese community centres, bringing their music into the wider community.

Above: Ms To speaks before the commencement of the concert.

The Learners Chorus was founded in 1979 by a group of Hong Kong University alumni. Its performances in London were supported by the Hong Kong Economic and Trade Office, London.

● ● ● Culture

A Tale of Two Cities reimagined

Hong Kong's Chung Ying Theatre Company brought its new play, A Tale of Two Cities: Blood for Blood, to London and Edinburgh (for the Edinburgh Festival Fringe) in July and August respectively to give the show its European premiere.

Created by award-winning writer-director Jonathan Holloway, this reimagining of Dickens' classic tale relocates the story in the present day, shunning cosy Dickensian theatricality in favour of a world of shadows and fakery.

The performances were supported by the Hong Kong Economic and Trade Office, London, as part of its commitment to promoting Hong Kong culture in the UK.

FORTHCOMING EVENTS

Mon, 26 September 2016
Hong Kong Trade Development Council Annual Dinner, London, UK

Sat, 12 November 2016
Hong Kong's entry to the Lord Mayor's Show, London, UK

Wed, 8 February 2017
Chinese New Year Reception in London, UK

FOR HONG KONG EVENT DETAILS:

 hketolondonuk

 @HKinLondon
@InvestHK_LDN

 hketolondon.gov.hk
investhk.gov.hk

Hong Kong Economic and Trade Office, 18 Bedford Square, London, WC1B 3JA
Tel +44 (0)20 7499 9821 Fax +44 (0)20 7323 2336
Email general@hketolondon.gov.hk Website www.hketolondon.gov.hk
Hong Kong Review designed and project managed by hrscreative.com, written by rogersjohns.com and printed by www.bkt.co.uk

